

Florida's Other Limited Resource: Land

Peggy H. Carr, ASLA, Professor
Associate Dean, College of Design, Construction and Planning
University of Florida

Some say Florida has reached its end game, meaning that within the next 50 years, Florida's patterns of land use will be fully determined. UF's GeoPlan Center has developed an approach for projecting future land use through population allocation to demonstrate the long term effects of current land use policies and to explore alternatives. Recent studies and evolving techniques will be presented.